COUNTY FAIR TO OPEN MONDAY FOR THREE DAY SHOW

By Clayton A. Rawson

It's Fair time again! What memories that sentence brings to mind! Peanuts, balloons, races, popcorn, trained animals, merry-go-round, greased pigs, bands, cows, chickens, ballyhooers, candy, sheep, farm implements, pink lemonade, aerial swing greased pole, ice cream, two-headed calf, fortune-teller, fireworks, horses, pageant. Oh boy, "ain't it a grand and glorious feelin'?"

Only two things are lacking in the fair of today that were predominant a few years ago, namely, the country "hick" or "hayseed." Before the automobile, radio and mail order clothes transferred the country into the city, the fair always boasted its full share of country visitor who wore his trousers tucked into his boots and chewed a rye straw. He has to be a good guesser now days who can tell whether the man he is rubbing elbows with is a resident of one of the crowded city precincts or one of the rural townships.

With the country rube the old time skin game also passed out. The three shell swindle and the gold brick scheme no longer takes advantage of the country visitor, having disappeared through lack of patronage.

Accounts of the early fairs are not very numerous because the fire which destroyed the Elyria block in 1863 burned up the records of the Lorain County Agricultural Society. However, the "History of Lorain County," by W. W. Williams contains quite a bit which is of interest about these fairs

Seventy-Nine Years Ago.

Seventy-nine years ago, fifteen years before the Civil war, the first fair was held in Elyria under the auspices of the Lorain County Agricultural Association. Previous to this time a number of stock shows had been held, one as early as 1833, but the first fair was held on September 30, 1846. This fair was held at what was then known as Ely Park and is now the public square, and $117 in premiums were awarded which was considered quite an amount in those days.

After a few years, the exact time not being recorded, the fairs were held where the Old Ladies' Home now stands Many interesting notes are made in looking over the accounts of these fairs

In those days they always had a plowing match as one of the big events of the day. Each contestant was given a certain amount of ground to plow and the man who turned the neatest furrow in the shortest length of time was awarded the prize The last contest of this kind was held in 1860.

The following was taken from the account of the 10th annual fair in the "History of Lorain County": "There was also a full field of ladies contending for the premiums offered for their skill in horsemanship, both for riding and driving"

Side Shows Barred.

The land on which the present fair grounds is located was purchased in 1867 from Heman Ely. At a meeting of the Agricultural society held the same year the following resolution was passed. "Resolved, that we will not admit to the fair grounds any side shows, swings, auctions, or intoxicating drinks, during the days of annual exhibitions" A number of the members were against horse racing and much argument was indulged in on this subject.

In January, 1867, a "Bee" (if you know what that is) was called and the buildings on the fair grounds moved across the river to the site of the present fair grounds.

On July 4, 1876, shortly before the 32nd annual fair a celebration was held at the fair grounds and the construction of the log cabin which is still to be seen on the grounds was begun A heavy rain set in early in the day, however, and the log cabin was not finished until a later date. The logs for this cabin were furnished by each township in the county. It was called the Centennial Cabin as the country was 100 years old at the time of its being built.

Association Grows.

From a small beginning the Lorain County Fair has become one of the best in the state. The grounds have been added to until it covers many acres right in the heart of town. New and modern buildings have been erected, the latest being a monstrous dance hall put up by the Riverview Park Co. Wonder how the Puritan Fathers would look on this innovation?

During recent years a notable decrease in the showing of stock has taken place. The automobile has crowded out the horse to a large extent, and there are but few entries in this class. The showing of cattle, sheep, hogs and chickens has also fallen off. Farmers complain that the premiums are not sufficient, but the fact that many farms are not oc-

GUN ELEVATION INSISTED ON BY U. S.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Determined to surrender none of the rights of the United States under the Washington naval treaty, the government was willing to submit to a new armament conference the question of elevating the guns on capital ships to increase their firing range, it was learned here today

Discussing the attitude of the British government that gun elevating would be regarded as a violation of the naval limitation treaty, officials said that this question was still undecided, not only between the nations signatory to the treaty, but also in the minds of those in this country charged with the administration of the agreement for the maintenance of a navy equal to that of Great Britain

President Coolidge's position, as made clear at the White House, is that the United States should take no action, either with respect to the treaty, or otherwise, which would have a tendency to approve or encourage competitive armament among the powers He would not only like to keep the American navy at the strength now authorized, but to effect further reductions if such were possible through international agreement.

Instead of making large expenditures for additional naval armament and the maintenance of military forces on land, the president was represented at wishing that European governments which owe the United States billions of dollars would divert whatever spare cash they have to the liquidation of these war obligations

As far as this government is concerned it is willing to permit the question of gun elevating to rest until it can be taken up and determined by a new conference, although standing ready at all times to assert all American rights under the Washington treaty should an international showdown become necessary.

No Paper Issued On Labor Day

There will be no issue of the Chronicle-Telegram on Monday. Labor Day will be observed by the employees of this paper as usual. There will be a general cessation of business throughout the city and the court house, city hall, banks and post office will be closed.

Stolen Auto Kills North Lima Man

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 30—A countrywide search was inaugurated today for speeding auto thieves who last night killed John Dubovich, 18, of North Lima, while he was walking on a road east of town. Dubovich's body was dragged 120 feet before the auto was brought to a stop. Albert Bundas, who accompanied Dubovich said three men extricated Dubovich's body from the wheels, then fled. The auto was abandoned half a mile away. It had been stolen.

ENGLISH PRINCE LUNCHES WITH PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Edward Albert, Prince of Wales and heir to the British throne, arrived in Washington at 1 o'clock this afternoon and through a mile long lane of cheering thousands was carried in a White House automobile from the Union station to the executive mansion where he was greeted by the President and Mrs. Coolidge

NEW YORK, Aug. 30—Using the prerogative of a prince who is heir to the throne of an empire, the Prince of Wales left the home prepared for him, spent last night on the special car provided for his trip and was asleep when his train left the Pennsylvania station at 8:55 eastern daylight saving time, for Washington, where he was to lunch today with President and Mrs. Coolidge.

Arrangements had been made to call the prince at 6 a. m today in order that he might be ready to board his special car in time for an early run to Washington. The prince listened attentively while his aides arranged their plans and then tossed the royal monkey wrench into the machinery, by saying that he did not intend to arise at such an hour. Accordingly, baggage, guests and other necessaries were sent aboard business car No. 90, the special car belonging to the president of the Pennsylvania railroad. The prince himself followed at 2 a. m.

The special train, consisting of an engine, a combination baggage and passenger coach, a Pullman sleeper and the prince's special car, had been parked in a siding behind the Burden estate, where the prince is a guest during his stay on Long Island, in order to facilitate the movement of the royal party. It was surrounded by a guard of state troopers. The train was left on the quiet siding until 6:30 o'clock, daylight time, when it moved off toward New York.

Pennsylvanis station was packed with the curious when the train rolled in and came to a halt. An army of newspaper and photographers ready to lay down a barrage of snapping lenses were present but the prince apparently slept soundly. The shades of his car were all drawn and there was no indication that anyone was stirring aboard business car No. 90.

David Boyle, former military attache at the British ambassy at Washington, appeared to answer questions from reporters.

It was announced that the prince probably would not arise until about ten o'clock, when Harry Dutrieulle, chef, would have a light breakfast ready What that would consist of no one could guess, for the price has always developed a changable mind.

Secretary of State Hughes was expected to meet the royal party at the station in Washington at 1 p. m. riding alone in the president's automobile. The prince was scheduled to join Mr. Hughes, ride with him to the White House and bid the secretary adieu. No secret service men or others were to ride in the official car, but were to follow in other automobiles.

Lunches With President.

The prince was expected to meet President and Mrs. Coolidge and their son, John, immediately upon his arrival and luncheon, according to plans, was to be ready to serve.

A chatty afternoon was planned until time for the prince's departure. His train was scheduled to leave Washington at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

There are 14 persons in the prince's party, including secret service operatives and other guards. The others are Colonel J. B. Charlton, Major E. D. Metcalfe and Butler Wright, third assistant secretary of state.

Boyle is acting as equerry because the prince has already tired out Brigadier General Trotter and Captain Allan F. Lascelles, who are remaining at Syosset

The prince is evidently interested in what the American newspapermen write about him, even though he shuns their advances whenever possible, for Charley Allen, porter on the special car, dashed into the station to get 12 copies of every morning newspaper just before train pulled out.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Pennsylvania avenue from the capitol to the White House took on a holiday aspect during the morning as crowds began to assemble to view the passage of the Prince of Wales, who is due to arrive in the capital early this afternoon for luncheon at the White

Hurricane Whacks Ships, Sends Passengers to Hospital

Scores of transatlantic travelers are in hospitals in New York recovering from severe injuries received when a hurricane caught liners and tossed them about as if they were canoes. An idea of the damage done to one of the ships, the Arabic, is given by the photo above. Also shown are one of the many persons injured aboard the Arabic, Miss V. Barton (left), and Thomas E. Owen, seaman, who was washed overboard by one towering wave only to be tossed back by another.

CHINESE FORCE FIGHTING, REPORT

LONDON, Aug. 30—Fighting has broken out between the forces of Sun Yat Sen and volunteers (Chinese Fascists) in the Canton district, said a Central News dispatch from Hong Kong today

The fighting reported at Canton has no connection with the threatened clash between rival factions in the Shanghai district.

Fifty Canton stores were reported destroyed by fires believed to have been set by incendiaries

Sun Yat Sen threatened to bombard Canton but that threat had not been carried out at last reports.

Foreigners remained in their homes under orders from their respective consulates.

PERSHING WILL BE AT FINDLAY

FINDLAY, O., Aug. 30.—With veterans of the 37th division—the Ohio National Guard unit in the world war—arriving from every section of the state by airplane, auto, train and trolley car, Findlay today had assumed a military aspect. The reunion, opened today and will continue throughout Monday.

Tomorrow Gen. John J. Pershing, commander-in-chief of the army, was to attend and deliver an address upon national defense. Monday officers will be selected and the next reunion city chosen

Rear Admiral Henry T. Mayor was scheduled to make an address Monday, also.

Gen. Pershing will arrive from Toledo tomorrow morning by auto escorted by a caravan of 100 decorated automobiles

Helen Brigant filed suit yesterday against William Brigant for alimony on the grounds of gross neglect of duty and habitual drunkenness

She says that while under the influence of liquor he drove her and their two children from their home at 1646 E. 30th street Lorain. She has been living with her parents and has received no support from her husband.

NIGHT PAGEANT FAIR FEATURE

The feature of the night fair on Monday and Tuesday nights will be the Pageant of Progress put on by the Irving C. Plain producing company of Cleveland. Five hundred people from all parts of Lorain county will take part in this elaborate spectacle

Miss Conna Bell will take the part of The Spirit of Progress Miss Bell has starred in several home talent productions and her talent is recognized.

Maxine Dunham, recently with George Cohen's "Little Nellie Kelly," which recently played in Cleveland, will be the feature dancer. Miss Dunham is an Elyria favorite who has won her laurels with some of the best companys in the theatrical world Among the other leading parts is Mae Frederick as the Radio Girl; Helen Barress, as Spirit of Light, and Tom Wainwright, who will sing the radio song over a radio broadcaster.

There will be Mazda Girls, Radio Girls, Traffic Cops, Auto Girls, and two hundred flower girls in the living flower garden. One novelty number will be an interpretation of the minuet as it was danced in our fathers' days, and as it would be danced today The Mazda dance will be novel, the entrance being featured by two girls breaking out of a hugh electric bulb. The Furnace of Industry, will also have distinctive scenic effects.

The Pageant starts promptly at 8 o'clock inside the race track in front of the grand stand

W. H. McClure Injured

W. H. McClure last night was standing between a truck and a pile of steel rails at the Elyria Iron and Steel Company, when a passing train knocked down a rail which struck him. The result of the impact was a fractured left hand and a bruised left hip He was immediately taken to Memorial Hospital where he is receiving treatment.

COMMISSION ON CLAIMS MEETS, HUGHES TALKS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Convening of the general claims commission to adjust disputed claims between the United States and Mexico marks a new era in the relations between these two countries, Secretary of State Hughes told the members of the commission here today. Hughes made the chief address at the first session of the commission at the Pan-American Uunion building.

"Once more there is indicated in this hemisphere," Secretary Hughes said, "the determination to find appropriate and peaceful solutions of international questions. Once more we give emphatic demonstration of our devotion to the cause of peace.

"That cause triumphs not so much in expression of ideals, however important these may be, as in the practical work of removing causes of differences and providing just settlements. These furnish the tests of our professions and the measure of our achievements."

Continuing Secretary Hughes described the convention under which the commission is organized as "a document every line of which breathes the spirit of justice" He emphasized that the agreement demonstrates that neither government desires unfair advantage but seeks only to "promote friendly relations by frank recognition of mutual obligations impartially determined"

"No international document of recent years," Secretary Hughes said, "has more fully demonstrated that the highest national interest lies in maintaining the supremacy of the principles of international law, justice and equity."

On behalf of the government of the United States, Secretary Hughes professed profound interest in the prosperity of Mexico and an abiding friendship for the Mexican people.

"We feel," he said, "we are entering into a new era of mutual confidence in our relations with Mexico to the advantage of the peoples of both countries."

In welcoming the members of the commission Secretary Hughes extended a special greeting to Dr. Van Vollenhoven, of Holland, the neutral member of the commission who will act as its chairman, and Senor McGregor, the official representative of the Mexican government. The permanent American member of the commission is Nathan L. Miller, former governor of New York but pending his assumption of his duties, Joseph R. Baker, will be the representative of the United States.

CRESTLINE MEN IN AUTO SMASH

An accident which was the means of several men landing in the local hospital occurred at one forty-five A. M., near Ridgeville when an automobile driven by James Henry of Crestline and a number of his Crestline friends, motoring from that city to Cleveland, skidded into the ditch and turned over.

The cause of the accident has been given as follows: That Mr Henry in attempting to pass a machine parked on the wrong side of the Cleveland road and to avoid a collision with an on-coming car, turned his car so abruptly that the rear wheels skidded, landing the party in the ditch.

Mr. Henry was found suffering with a pain in his right side and was taken to Memorial hospital. He was discharged from that institution today. Mr. Herbert Richey sustained lacerations on the right ear and possible internal injuries. He is in the hospital. The other two members of the party, Everett Howell and Charles Henry were not admitted.

HURRICANE AT VIRGIN ISLANDS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—A tropical hurricane passed over the Virgin islands last night, causing considerable damage to property at St. Thomas, according to a radio dispatch received by the Navy Department today. No casualties were reported.

St. Croix, the capital of the islands, according to the dispatch suffered but little damage.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—The rear end collision between the Detroiter, bound from New York to Detroit, and the Lake Shore limited, New York to Chicago, near Seneca, N. Y., early today was caused when the air line on the limited broke and automatically caused the brakes to set, officers of the road here said. The Detroiter was only five minutes behind.

One young woman on the Detroiter was unofficially reported to have suffered a fractured skull Her name was not available.

The rear coach of the Lake Shore limited and the engine and club car of the Detroiter were derailed. Conductor Laas, of the Lake Shore limited reported to headquarters that no one was seriously injured on his train.

The second car from the engine on the Lake Shore limited was derailed. The windows were smashed and the occupants hurled to the floors from their berths

The engineer of the Detroiter was badly mangled and his recovery was said to be doubtful.

The accident occurred in inky darkness and in a spot where the central flyers speed along at sixty miles or better an hour.

The Lake Shore limited was preceding the Detroiter by about 15 minutes, just what caused the delay which was responsible for the crash remains to be explained by New York Central officials who are withholding a statement until they have completed an investigation.

The names of the injured, as telegraphed to New York Central headquarters here include.

Mrs. J. E. Deluss, 648 Robinwood Ave., Toledo, O., fractured ankle.

Mrs. G. H. Ranshaw, Dudley Pike, Covington, Yy, lacerations.

Sherman E. Conrad, 2301 Hollywood Ave., Toledo, O, sprains and bruises.

Mrs. M. B. Laven, Cleveland, O.

Mrs. B. Jackson, Toledo.

Mrs. Judson Zuloff, Toledo, cuts and bruises.

Passengers who were, with a few exceptions, asleep, were awakened by a terrific grating crash at the same time as they were hurled about the floors of the cars.

There was a mad scramble for the doors. Windows of the sleeping Pullmans were shattered and some passengers crawled through them. Others fought their way through the narrow passageways to the doors. Screams of frightened and groans of the injured arose above the hiss of steam from the shattered engine. The debris did not catch fire.

Members of the train crews, aided by those passengers who kept their heads, assisted in the rescue of the hurt and of those by the accident. One trainman rushed to Savannah and from there notified the Syracuse Central headquarters of the wreck.

Central officials here, clamping down a censorship, quietly recruited doctors and nurses for two relief trains and these were dispatched to the scene.

The first name of the injured to be made public was that of Walter Gibbons, East Buffalo, N. Y., engineer of the Detroiter. He was brought to St. Joseph's hospital here.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Twenty-three passengers and four members of the train crews of the Detroiter and the Lake Shore limited, which crashed in a rear-end collision early today near Seneca, N. Y., on the New York Central, were injured, according to an official report of the wreck received here today by officials of the road. None of these injured, it was said, is in a serious condition

All of the injured, it was announced, were being sent to Syracuse hospitals on special relief trains.

The two trains came together 100 feet east of a block signal just as the Lake Shore limited was passing under the block and just as the red danger signal was automatically dropping.

The Pullman Jacomby, a sleeper, on the Lake Shore limited, was the last car in the train and every compartment was filled, owing to Labor Day traffic.

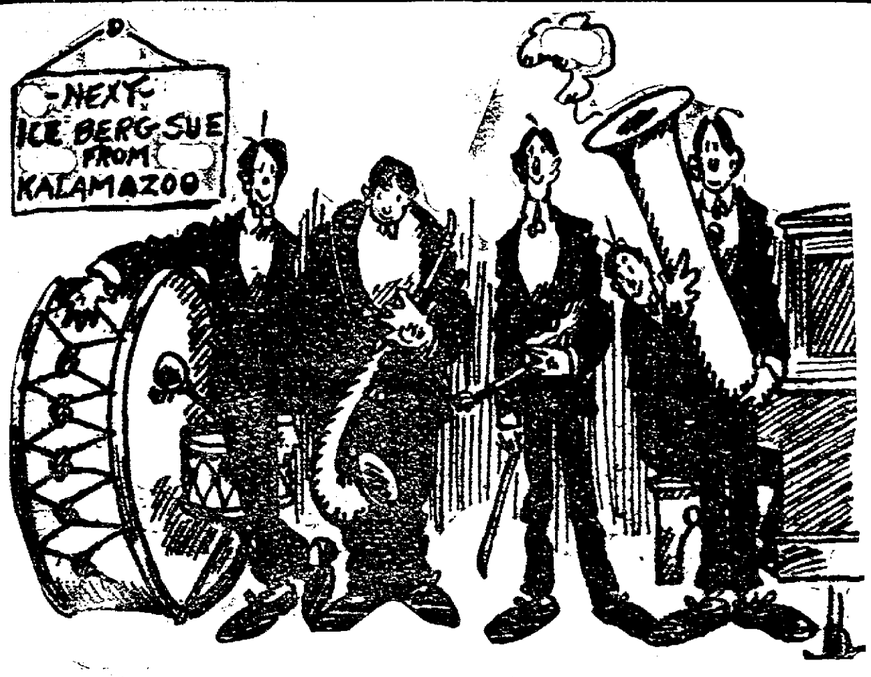

The engine of the Detroiter plowed 25 feet into the Lake Shore rear end.

The Jacomby was split wide open and the trucks were driven up to the center of the car.

The impact derailed the Detroiter engine, separated the engine from the tender, spilled the coal over four tracks of the Central main line and blocked all traffic, both east and west-bound

The baggage car, the first of the Detroiter, was badly wrecked. The roof was split in and the trunks so thrown about that they split open

ABE MARTIN On Boy Orchestras

FIVE PROSPECTIVE CHARGES ON TH' COMMUNITY.

A census o' th' boy orchestras throughout th' United States has jest been completed an' th' figures are staggerin'. Unless some vigorous action is taken, an' taken immediately, t' stem th' tide o' youth in th' direction o' dance orchestras, our whole economic structure must tumble, t' say nothin' o' th' reg'lar army. Th' exodus o' kids an' young men from th' useful walks o' life t' th' saxophone alone mounts well int' th' hundreds o' thousan's, while those who are devotin' th' golden, habit formin' years of ther lives t' trombones an' trap drums may easily be surmised since wherever ther's a saxophone th' drums an' trombone are hard by. Employers o' child labor are complainin' bitterly, while parents who wish t' make dentists an' plasterers o' ther sons are wringin' ther hands. An' this present day craze among boys t' join slap bang orchestras is drivin' our girls int' th' professions. Instead o' prowlin' about durin' th' long summer evenin's with girls in ther arms, fully eighty per cent of our boys may be seen dartin' here an' there carryin' bass drums, fiddle boxes an' horns. An' what kind o' music are they makin'? We saw a fine promisin' lookin' boy buyin' a stiff hat fer his trombone th' other day with money his father had given him, not fer mowin' th' lawn or washin' th' car, but jest out o' th' goodness of his heart. We know his dad an' he's a fine, conscientious cement mixer an' wears a cap daily an' Sunday. Th' saxophone is an ole time musical instrument, an' fer many years, or up t' th' time jazz got prominent, it had no standin' whatever in decent, ear respectin' musical organizations, but t'day its low, degradin' notes predominate at all dances. We don't know how true it is, but we've heard that these jazz orchestra boys make three dollars an hour while they last. But what o' th' future years, but what o' th' day of reckonin' when ther orchestra days are over, when they're tossed int' th' arena o' life with nothin' t' commend 'em but an ear fer nose? Gittin' stuck on a musical instrument is different from any other diversion. We kin have most any other kind of a hobby an' still study law, or medicine, or learn a trade or excel as a bookkeeper, but becomin' endeared t' a musical instrument destroys initiative, an' th' ambition t' tred th' nobler walks o' life.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Dr. David Starr Jordan, who has tentatively accepted the directorship of the recently established Pan-Pacific Research Institute at Honolulu, is the well-known Pacific Coast educator who for so many years was president and later chancellor of the university founded by Leland Stanford in memory of his son, Leland Stanford, Jr. Of late years Dr. Jordan has been prominent as a publicist, much interested in promoting international good will. His earlier career was that of a zoologist and an authority on ichthyology, with experience as professor in high grade educational institutions in the middle West. He was president of Indiana University when he was summoned, in 1891, to go to Palo Alto and lay the foundations of the university which is his creation, on the pedagogical side, precisely as much as it is Mr. Stanford's on the pecuniary side. Dr. Jordan is a member of many learned societies in Europe and in the United States, and has received the degree of doctor of laws from a number of universities and colleges.

BAKER MAKES STATEMENT OF SUM EXPENDED

LORAIN, Aug. 30.—The Northern Ohio Tornado Relief division of the American Red Cross has expended $36,018.17 of the $410,625 turned over so far by the various relief fund solicitation agencies, according to a sworn financial statement given out today by Henry M. Baker, director.

The sum includes total expenditures up to the close of August 26th.

In an accompanying statement, Baker explains the item "total expenditures" represents only bills actually paid, and does not include rehabilitation appropriations already made, but as yet unpaid.

Differences Explained.

Up to Aug. 23, 457 families had received relief awards totaling $356,480. The difference between the appropriations and expenditures is explained by the fact that awards are given for repair of homes, purchase of furniture and other equipment, the bill for which have, as yet, not been turned into the relief organization for payment.

Baker announced that a sworn financial statement will be submitted every two weeks.

Today's statement follows:

HOMEMADE LAMP LOOKS LIKE IT

Makeshifts Never Compare With the Real Thing.

VITAL TO EFFECT OF ROOM

Most Beautiful Furnishings Can Be Spoiled by Poor Selection of Lamps.

By MARGUERITE KEMP

Feminine nature is the same generation after generation. The woman of fifty years ago whose patchwork quilts were the envy of all her neighbors now has a granddaughter who can make the handsomest lamp shades in the neighborhood. Lamp shade making is quite an art—it requires infinite patience and skill, for each operation must be painstakingly done before the next step can be started. But that brings to light another feminine complex! The woman who can make a pair of rompers and embroider a Bunny Rabbit on the pockets in a single forenoon will spend hours and hours winding a wire lamp shade frame with ribbon and pinning down tiny little pleats with thousands of pins carefully put in lengthwise side by side. Oh, woman, woman!

Of course really gorgeous lamp shades can be bought ready made but they must follow a more or less conventional line of color combinations and the housewife who devises her own unique color schemes for certain rooms can make shades to suit her own artistic sense and then feel satisfied that she has done everything humanly possible to make the room perfect.

Avoid Makeshift Lamps.

But I sincerely hope that her efforts cease with making the lamp shade. Some deluded housewives go a step further and make the lamp base, as well, and the results are something awful in most cases. A costumer is most often utilized as a makeshift lamp base, with a hole bored through the base to take the cord, but it still remains a costumer in spite of all the gilt and paint which may be applied. Other women use even more primitive ingredients and construct a so-called lamp base from a broomstick and clothesline, thinking it looks like a reed or fibre lamp, but they fool nobody but themselves.

The lamp base should be selected carefully, with an eye to its own beauty and its harmony with the room in which it will be placed The polychrome bases are enjoying a tremendous vogue right now, and it is quite logical, for the subdued but rich coloring of the polychrome effect is in excellent harmony with the rich coloring of the lamp shades, and furnishes a pleasing bit of color to the room Two-tone walnut bases are also found, which fit nicely into the room with two-tone walnut furnishings. Stippled effects and plain antique gilt or silver are also used abundantly, while others are plain but have a touch of color in a hair line or dot effect to harmonize with the bright colored shade which will top them

Three Kinds of Floor Lamps.

Floor lamps come in three varieties, the regulation floor lamp; the junior floor lamp, which may have a large shade but is somewhat shorter than the regular floor lamp; and the bridge lamp in which an arm projecting at right angles from the base supports a shade. The larger floor lamp is excellent in a room where the lights are few, for it furnishes illumination for a greater area than the others. The junior floor lamp is good to provide a nice light for a table and chair, or two chairs, or other place which necessitates a smaller concentrated light. The bridge lamp is sadly misnamed for thousands upon thousands of bridge lamps never saw a bridge game. They are the nicest kind of lamps to use with an individual chair. The old grandeur of the ancients who had a slave pull a string to operate a huge feather fan over a luxurious throne or couch seems repeated in the silken shade which hovers over the chair to furnish a cheerful glow of light at the touch of a tasseled cord.

The best shades for floor lamps are those of silk and georgette. The soft colors of these lovely fabrics and the effects which can be achieved when the light shines through layers of different tints make the lamp a definite spot of beauty in the room as well as an object of great utility.

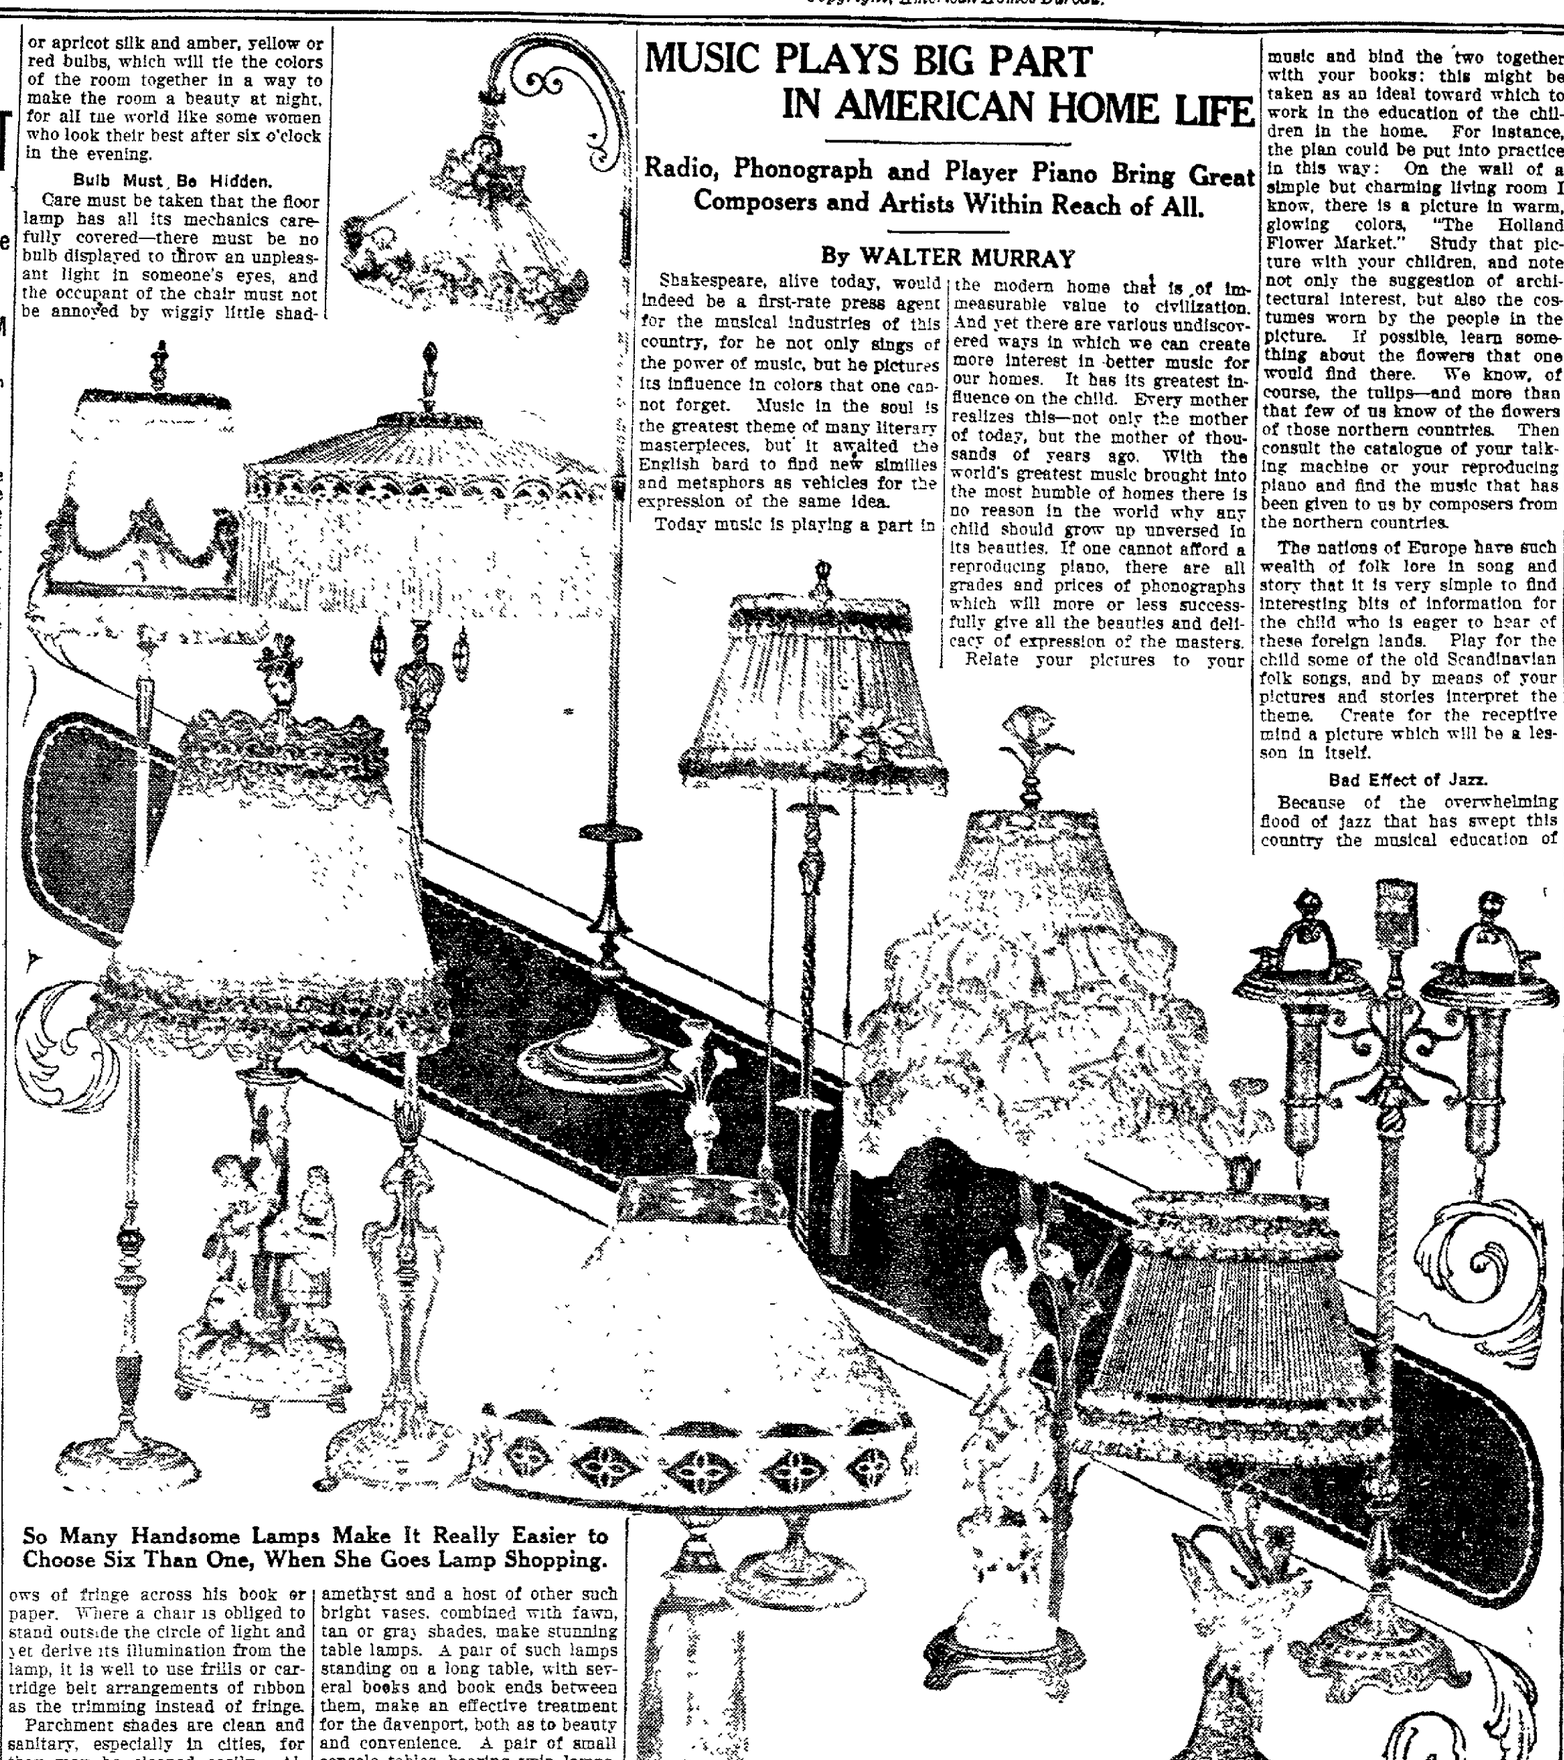

Warm Linings Best.

While the exterior of the lamp shade may be any color the housewife desires, a cool blue, green or violet, it is always well to use a lining of soft yellow, orange or red silk, for that gives a pleasing warmth to the glow of the light. It may even be better to go a step further and use colored bulbs, amber or pink to give a soft, sunshiny glow to the light. These colored bulbs, however, have a way of affecting the color of walls, fabrics or anything else in the room. An amber light makes brown more intense, but it also turns red to brown, and it gives blue a green tinge which may or may not be carrying out the housewife's idea of color harmony.

When a pet chair or davenport is upholstered with a fabric of a definite color which the housewife does not wish to change, she should consider the light question from all angles, and use clear bulbs and shades which do not affect the daytime color harmony. On the other hand, if the housewife has furniture of unrelated colors which makes the room look like a rummage sale in full swing, she may select lamp shades with linings of henna, gold, orange or yellow, peach or apricot silk and amber, yellow or red bulbs, which will tie the colors of the room together in a way to make the room a beauty at night, for all the world like some women who look their best after six o'clock in the evening.

Bulb Must Be Hidden.

Care must be taken that the floor lamp has all its mechanics carefully covered—there must be no bulb displayed to throw an unpleasant light in someone's eyes, and the occupant of the chair must not be annoyed by wiggly little shadows of fringe across his book or paper. Where a chair is obliged to stand outside the circle of light and yet derive its illumination from the lamp, it is well to use frills or cartridge belt arrangements of ribbon as the trimming instead of fringe.

Parchment shades are clean and sanitary, especially in cities, for they may be cleaned easily. Although the soft yellowish brown light which they cast is distinctly pleasing, the wide decorative bands which feature parchment shades are sometimes hopelessly bad. Conventional forms of fruit or flowers are better than the hideous realistic alleged-decorative effects which are often applied

Shades of glazed chintz are good, too, whether the chintz is stretched tightly over the sections of a many-sided frame or accordian pleated over a round frame. The chintz may be shellaced as an additional insurance against dust.

Attractive Vase Lamps.

Table lamps have grown considerably better since someone thought of using glass or porcelain vases as the bases. The theory of the bright lamp shade and neutral base is turned topsy-turvy by the latest developments in table lamps, which have neutrally colored shades, and bases of vivid glowing colors which add that all-important accent to the color scheme of the room. Green-blue, orange, lacquer red, amethyst and a host of other such bright vases, combined with fawn, tan or gray shades, make stunning table lamps. A pair of such lamps standing on a long table, with several books and book ends between them, make an effective treatment for the davenport, both as to beauty and convenience. A pair of small console tables, bearing twin lamps, at either side of the fireplace, make an interesting treatment of wall spaces.

The ceiling fixtures for the living room have almost been eliminated by the beautiful floor and table lamps which the last few seasons have brought out. They had many drawbacks, the worst being the fact that they often hung in the center of the room, furnishing a little island of light, while the chairs and tables were arranged around the wall in a manner to derive no benefit whatever from the light.

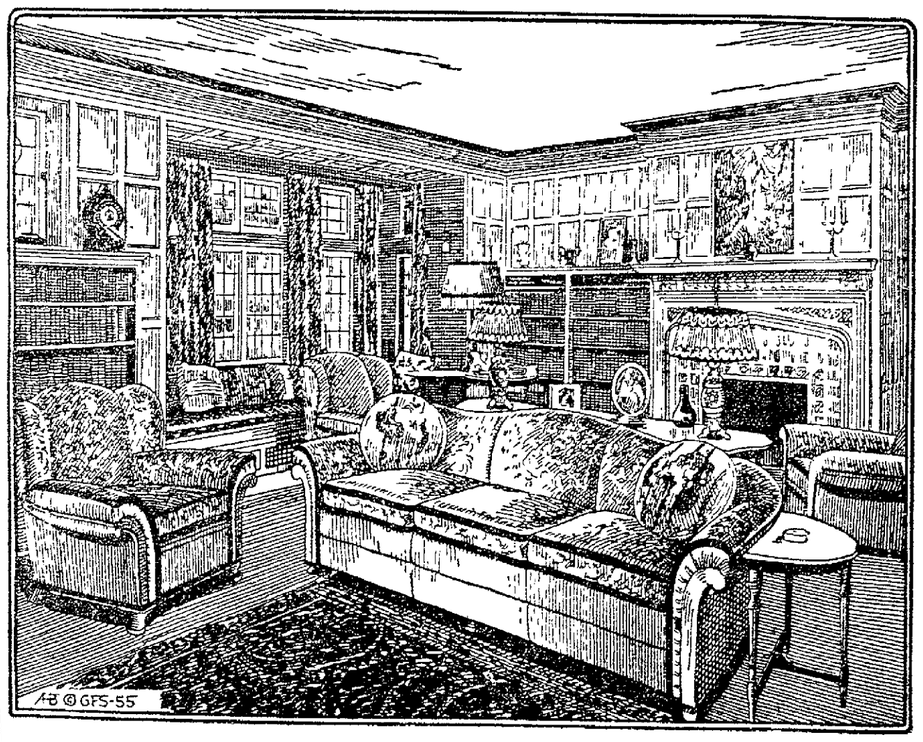

Inverted Lights Need Help.

The inverted light which throws a bright light on the ceiling and leaves the rest of the room in darkness, is not in use any more, except in conjunction with several floor and table lamps. Then it is frequently used to augment the general light throughout the room. When used alone it gives no shadows to a room and consequently destroys much of its interest, for beautiful bits of carving and other decorative items are totally lost without their attendant shadows.

The dining room still retains the ceiling fixture, but it should be placed over the dining table at a height to cast sufficient illumination over the table, but not so low as to obstruct the view across the table. The light must never be harsh or glaring, whatever form of fixture is used. Electric lights in the form of candles with softly tinted little shades form one of the most pleasing dining table fixtures, with a finish in silver, old gold or polychrome.

Wall fixtures have retained their popularity despite the horde of portable lights which have descended upon us. They are excellent to light up a corner or side of a room which threatens to be dull, and in addition, they really serve a decided use in furnishing illumination for a reading table, chair or desk. In a bedroom they may light a dresser or dressing table, and in a dining room a pair of side lights flanking the sideboard will be found of immense value.

MUSIC PLAYS BIG PART IN AMERICAN HOME LIFE

Radio, Phonograph and Player Piano Bring Great Composers and Artists Within Reach of All.

By WALTER MURRAY

Shakespeare, alive today, would indeed be a first-rate press agent for the musical industries of this country, for he not only sings of the power of music, but he pictures its influence in colors that one cannot forget. Music in the soul is the greatest theme of many literary masterpieces, but it awaited the English bard to find new similies and metsphors as vehicles for the expression of the same idea.

Today music is playing a part in the modern home that is of immeasurable value to civilization. And yet there are various undiscovered ways in which we can create more interest in better music for our homes. It has its greatest influence on the child. Every mother realizes this—not only the mother of today, but the mother of thousands of years ago. With the world's greatest music brought into the most humble of homes there is no reason in the world why any child should grow up unversed in its beauties. If one cannot afford a reproducing piano, there are all grades and prices of phonographs which will more or less successfully give all the beauties and delicacy of expression of the masters.

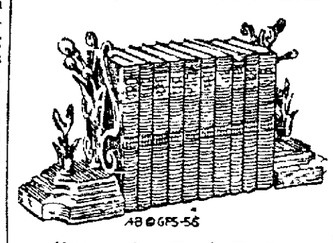

Relate your pictures to your music and bind the two together with your books: this might be taken as an ideal toward which to work in the education of the children in the home. For instance, the plan could be put into practice in this way: On the wall of a simple but charming living room I know, there is a picture in warm, glowing colors, "The Holland Flower Market." Study that picture with your children, and note not only the suggestion of architectural interest, but also the costumes worn by the people in the picture. If possible, learn something about the flowers that one would find there. We know, of course, the tulips—and more than that few of us know of the flowers of those northern countries. Then consult the catalogue of your talking machine or your reproducing piano and find the music that has been given to us by composers from the northern countries.

The nations of Europe have such wealth of folk lore in song and story that it is very simple to find interesting bits of information for the child who is eager to hear of these foreign lands. Play for the child some of the old Scandinavian folk songs, and by means of your pictures and stories interpret the theme. Create for the receptive mind a picture which will be a lesson in itself.

Bad Effect of Jazz.

Because of the overwhelming flood of jazz that has swept this country the musical education of our people has had to suffer a setback. The modern child often fails, not only to see the desirability of knowing the best in music, when there is so much that is superficially interesting in the fascinating rhythm and saccharine melody of modern "jazz," but it is difficult to convince a child of the joy and satisfaction of being able to perform on an instrument when one of no training can, merely by the turn of a crank, have the world's music at his command.

The talking machine of 1905, for instance, could not have been called a thing of beauty, by any stretch of the imagination. Its great long horn extending into the room, hung from the nickel extension rod for support, was not an artistic adjunct to any room Its box was generally of golden oak, highly polished. In these days, however, we were so entranced with the musical possibilities of the instrument that the manufacturer had but little time for artistic expression. Perhaps that is the logical order of things, for today the American home has been given not only an instrument that produces, marvelously and beautifully, the music of the ages, but it has been given to the home in a form that is in itself a thing of beauty.

For instance, take the modern upright cabinet of the talking machine. It is finished in any wood and in any design. If one's room is built along period lines it is possible to have a machine which will not only be harmonious with the general scheme but will add greatly to its effect. In the simple Colonial living room might well be used one of the standard cabinets in dull mahogany, unadorned with decoration of any sort. The plain lines of this cabinet are in sympathy with the simplicity of that period. On the other hand, if the particular living room has been furnished in the period of William and Mary, in the fine smooth-finished walnut of the period, there are console machines that are correct in line, to continue the period tradition.

DAINTY FRAME IS BEST FOR YOUR WATER COLOR

Lightness Is Needed to Harmonize With the Delicacy of the Color Effects.

Every great artist began his life's work as an amateur and every amateur is potentially a great artist. When the student paints a good picture he likes to frame it, and often if properly framed it makes an appropriate decoration for the living room, or one of the other rooms of the home.

As water color is a favorite medium for the young artist we will consider the framing of pictures of this kind. The water color is essentially dainty, and its framing must carry out this quality.

Carved or plain mouldings can be used, but they must not be wide nor heavy. Plain gold frames are always good on water colors. The delicacy of the water color makes a mat very effective in adding to its charm and in setting off its color beauties. A mat of cream, buff, gray or gold is invariably good, the color of the mat depending on its harmony with the colors in the picture.

For the marine sketch with touches of white in clouds or sails a white mat of proper width to balance the size of the picture will add to the feeling of breadth and distance in the picture. A narrow gold or polished wood frame will give the composition an artistic finish.

Sunny Garden Pictures.

For the close-up view of a colorful garden with hollyhocks or trees in the foreground, which form a gateway through which one catches a glimpse of a sunny vista, a darker (perhaps gold) mat and frame would carry out the idea of the gateway leading to a fairy garden.

The flower picture, or still life with dark background, does not always need a mat. If a mat is desired an artistic effect could be obtained by the use of a gold one. The slightly carved dull gold frame on a picture of this kind would set it off nicely.

LINOLEUM EMANCIPATED FROM ITS KITCHEN TIES

Its Many Qualities Have Won It a Place in Other Parts of the House.

By ELSIE WEST

With the ease of an accomplished housewife, at home with her cooking pots and pans and among her friends in her sitting-room, linoleum has stepped gracefully from the kitchen and pantry into the other rooms of the house, proving that the qualities which made it of value in the kitchen are just as important in the bedroom, sunparlor, den or hallway.

Certainly hardwood floors were a great step in advance of the wide, soft wood boards that used to serve as floors, and "hardwood floors throughout" is still a term that intrigues the heart of a woman to whom cleanliness is dear.

The fact that linoleum is now taking its place marks a distinct point of turning in home furnishing and decoration. It is only because linoleum has served well its long apprenticeship in the kitchen, pantry and bathroom. While in this humble capacity it has converted us to its qualities of comfort beneath the foot, ease in cleaning, and stout serviceability under the most trying conditions.

Designs for Every Purpose.

To be sure, these qualities are good in any floor, and it only remained for linoleum manufacturers to see the possible field in every room in the house and make patterns that would enter into and conform to any scheme of decoration.

Of course, the patterns with which we have been so long familiar in the kitchen and pantry would not do for the dainty, intimate bedroom, for the somewhat formal, quiet dining-room, or for the hallway where the atmosphere of combined ease and dignity is so necessary.

It was almost impossible for interior decorators or for the housewife, who had a penchant for artistic furnishings, to use the wood floor as part of the decorative scheme. There is, on the other hand, a linoleum floor for any conceivable interior, whether it be a gay French bedroom or a somewhat heavy English dining-room.

Excellent Use of Linoleum.

There is one particularly delightful dining-room in a certain charming country home. On the paneled walls, painted a bluish gray, are old and rare prints; above these fine willow ware plates. The owner decided to use a tile pattern of linoleum with a plain gray linoleum border, and the result justified his expectations to the utmost. Thus at a cost of less than hardwood he was able to put in a floor that conformed perfectly with his unusual decorations. It is hard to conceive of any other floor covering—certainly not luxurious carpet, certainly not yellow hardwood, certainly not unyielding tile—that would have harmonized so well and even emphasized his unusual decorative scheme.

This is why interior decorators have come to rely more and more on linoleum as a part of the color scheme of a room. When linoleum is used they can build their color ideas from the floor up. And because linoleum has all the inherent qualities of good building material, architects, too, are specifying it for permanent floors.

Steel beds have made great strides since the days when they were frankly metal. Now they are manufactured in a variety of finishes which simulate the wood bed so perfectly that it is difficult to detect the difference. Some of them are painted in light colors and look exactly like the popular painted wooden furniture, while others have cane panel intersets for all the world like those of the wooden beds, although the "cane" is metal as well as the frame of the bed.

Early History of Fire Department

From an old file of the Independent Democrat it is learned that the first fire company was organized here in 1839. At that time a small hand fire engine operated by hand was purhased and the company was known as Aetna No. 1. This engine is still one of the treasured possessions of the Volunteer Fire Association.

The first company elected Seymour W. Baldwin, pioneer dry goods merchant, as foreman, and Samuel Goodwin as secretary and treasurer. Water was furnished to operate the engines from cisterns built at strategic points about the village. The company was composed of thirty prominent business men and they did very good work considering the handicap they were under.

KIPTON

By Miss Margaret Lee

KIPTON, Aug. 30.—The community church of Kipton adopted its constitution and by-laws last Sunday. The final steps of organization will be made the first week of September. Any people wishing to join the church by letter or conference of faith will have the privilege of becoming charter members.

The 30th annual reunion of the Hurd family was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Radcliff on Thursday, Aug. 28, 1924, with 52 present. A bountiful basket lunch was served on the lawn at one o'clock followed by the business meeting. A. C. Hurd of Lorain, the president, took charge of the meeting which was opened by prayer by Rev. S. Kelly, of Allagan, Mich. Reading of the minutes, remarks were made by Rev. Kelly of Allagan, Mich.; Mrs. Frances Lee, Mrs. S. Kelly, of Allagan. Mrs. Fannie Hurd of Lorain, historian, read the Hurd history; the president, A. C. Hurd, of Lorain, spoke about the Lorain disaster; little Richard Radcliff spoke a piece; Mrs. Kelly sang "The Little Red Cradle," and Riley Parker spoke. The election of officers took place as follows: President, A. C. Hurd, Lorain; vice president, Roy Hurd, Elyria; secretary, Mrs. L. Heidrick, Elyria; treasurer, Mrs. Fannie Hurd, Lorain. A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. and Mrs. Leo Radcliff for entertaining the reunion so nicely. Mr. Albert Hurd was unable to be present on account of sickness so it was decided to give him a post card shower. Mrs. Frances Lee and Mrs. Anna L. Weeks were the only ones of Harrison Hurd family present. A letter was also sent to Mrs. Rearick of Cleveland. In closing they sang "God Be With You Till We Meet Again." Benediction, Mr. Kelly. Relatives were present from Cleveland, Lorain, Elyria, Wellington, Rochester, Wakeman, Columbia Station and Michigan. The following history of the Hurd family was read. History of Harrison Hurd, born July 11, 1804, Denmark, Lewis county, New York, son of John Hurd; married to Rebecca Stillson, March 4th, 1830, who was born in Connecticut, Feb. 11, 1807. They moved to Camden, Lorain county, Ohio, the fall of 1834, came by boat to Vermilion, the nearest shipping point, where they had to ship their grain, built a log house, moved his family in the spring, where they lived until January 1, 1853, when they moved into a new frame house where, their youngest child was born, April 30, 1853, (now Mrs. Frances Lee). Three children were born. The country was then an almost unbroken wilderness, there being only three families in thetownship—Maugh, Bayless and Lee. They had a bric koven out doors. He lived on the same farm that he settled on for 61 years, and died July 11, 1895 on his 91st birhtday. Rebecca, his wife, had passed on before, aged 78 years. They are buried in the beautiful cemetery near their home. To them were born twelve children from whom have descended 32 grandchlidren, 57 great-grandchildren, 16 great-great-grandchildren.

The Camden Baptist church opened its doors Tuesday morning for a feast of good things as the pastors, delegates and members from the churches of the Lorain Baptist Association gathered for their annual meeting. The former pastor, S. K. Meek, opened the meeting by reading from the 17th chapter of Matthew the account of the transfiguration of Christ and sounded the keynote of the meeting, which was "Jesus Only." The annual sermon by Dr. W. L. Walker was a vivid presentation of Jesus Christ, and that of the moderist. The ministers' and laymen's confernce was in charge of Rev. G. I. Cooper, of Lorain, and was interesting, helpful nad inspiring. The music under the direction of H. G. Stevic, was one of the main features of the love feast, and enjoyed by all. Miss Pearl Ford of the Trinity church presided at the piano. The Sunday school and young people's department, under the able and efficient leadership of Rev. O. G. Nickols of Medina, was a feature long to be remembered. What an inspiration to see the model Sunday school, hear the young people as they conducted an ideal B.Y.P.U. society meeting. The missionary sermon could not well be overlooked as it was full of fire, zeal and spiritual fervor that was catching. The women's missionary union presented a program that could scarcely be surpassed. Every speaker had a live message for us and the climax was reached when our dear brother, Rev. F. C. Imhof, of the Cleveland Hebrew mission pleaded for the "chosen people," presenting a product of their work in in the person of a young man, saved at their meeting Tuesday evening. The closing service was well attended and Rev. Starrett of Oberlin, delivered the address in a strong and masterful way. During the conference a council of ministers examined for ordination, our brother, James Burt, of Elyria, who is the pastor of the New Baptist church, on the east side of Lorain. And last but by no means least, mention must be made of our beloved moderator, L. A. Obitts, whose sweet spirit is a benediction.

Mrs. Ernest and sons of Brewster, O., have been spending the week with her sister, Mrs. Coon Bikel.

Mrs. Jennie Reynolds and children spent a few days with relatives in Elyria.

Miss Gertrude Davis, of Oberlin, was a Thursday evening caller of Mrs. McCotter and Eppie.

The Christian Endeavors held a wiener roast at the Union church and a pleasant evening was spent and the election of officers took place.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bayless and family and Dorothy Boenger of Cleveland, and Sam Davidson and family were among those who attended the Norwalk fair Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Gibbs and daughter, Mrs. Louis Whitney and daughters went to Fremont on Thursday.

Miss Dorothy Boenger of Cleveland, is visiting her cousin, Marjorie Bayless.

Miss Blanche Twining, of Cleveland, who is spending her vacation with her mother, spent Tuesday night and Wednesday with her sister, Mrs. Nellie Fisher.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Craft announce the birth of a daughter, Novella Jane, on June 15th. Mr. and Mrs. Craft were former teachers here.

Mr. and Mrs. John Brown and daughter Marian, spent Sunday at Chagrin Falls.

Mrs. Lucille Moehl was an Elyria shopper Tuesday.

Miss Dorothy Harr is spending a week's vacation with her parents. Miss Harr entertained on Tuesday evening, Ralph Hamlin, Esther Gauman and Bill Lanener of Elyria.

Mrs. Gertrude Lee and two daughters of Wakeman, spent Wednesday with relatives.

Made Sharpe was a recent visitor in Cleveland.

Mrs. Henry Ott and her sister, Mrs. Gleason, and daughter, Miss Lillian, were calling in town Wednesday evening. Miss Gleason will teach the first and second grades this year.

The Kipton Grange met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Leinger in Camden, on Tuesday evening, with the usual attendance.

BOSS THERMO WASHER

Exclusive THERMO Features

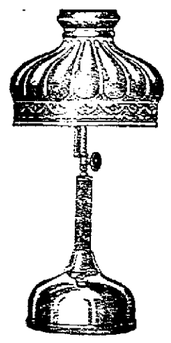

THAT MAKE IT the GREATEST ELECTRIC WASHER of THE DAY
HOLDS HEAT WITHOUT BURNERS

Every woman knows that hot water is one of the most important requirements to wash white clothes clean and snowy white. Electric Washer Manufacturers have tried for years to find a way to retain the water's heat. Some adopted burners which were not only troublesome and an expense for fuel, but also caused the washings to turn yellow in time. It remained for Boss designers to solve the problem. The THERMO is their answer.

Built on the Thermos bottle principle, the THERMO keeps the water hot throughout the time required to do the biggest washing. It gives you all the advantages of a copper tub plus the greater advantages of the heat retaining THERMO construction. No other washer has this important advantage.

The inner copper tub is tinned on inside and has deep corrugations which add strength and increase the washing action. The cover and top of the THERMO are solid aluminum — rustless and easy to keep clean. Cover fits snugly and is very light and easy to lift. The washer starts and stops by closing and raising the cover. What could be more simple? No clutch to manipulate and no cups or cylinders to lift out. The THERMO is easily kept clean.

LABOR VIEWS TO BE TEXT OF DAVIS

WHEELING, W. Va., Aug. 30.—The expression of the democratic nominee's views on labor, to be made here Monday by the Hon. John W. Davis at the Labor Day observance, the first full utterance upon the subject by the candidate, promises to bring a phenomenal gathering to Wheeling. It will be the only address by Mr. Davis in Wheeling Monday, he having wired today to urge that this plan be strictly adhered to in arrangements.

Mr. Davis will not be accompanied to Wheeling by Mrs. Davis, neither will she accompany the candidate on the three weeks or longer swing west as far as Denver.

Enroute to Wheeling, Mr. Davis will be joined by Hon. S. W. Osenton, West Virginia member of the Democratic National committee, for a conference enroute to this city.

Arrangements to broadcast the Davis speech Monday, beginning at 1:30 o'clock were completed today with the testing out of paraphernalia.

Members Of Drug Ring To Go On Trial

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 30—Earle Tapp, grain elevator owner, J. Boone, banker; Dr. B. A. Martin, Mrs. Martin, Calvin A. Trapke, veterinary surgeon and O. C. Pettiford, all of Mt. Victory, who were indicted a year ago on a charge of conspiracy to violate the Harrison narcotic act, and for alleged transportation of Morphine and cocaine, will face trial on the charges September 3, it was announced at the federal district attorney's office today.

Since the indictments were returned, Martin has died. It was alleged at the time that those indicted operated a "drug" ring between St. Louis and Mt. Victory for shipment of forbidden drugs to Lima.

Federal narcotic agent E. H. Staley unearthed 50,000 worth of drugs in Lima. It was alleged that Dr. Martin supplied medical blanks enabling members of the ring to secure and transport the drugs.

FAMOUS ACTRESS DIES IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Mrs. Julie Reinhardt, 80, well known actress and suffragist, died here today after an illness of nine months. Death resulted from an injury in an Elpaso theater several years ago when she fell 25 feet while playing in "the auctioneer."

Mrs. Rheinhardt, called "America's grand old woman," was well known among stage folks of a generation ago.

Mrs. Reinhardt was active in the woman suffrage fight for forty years.

GOOD OFFICES OF UNCLE SAM MAY END WAR

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Stokeley W. Morgan, American Charge D' Affaires at Tegucigalpa, has been instructed by the State Department to use his good offices in efforts to bring about an agreement to end the Civil war in Honduras, it was announced this afternoon.

AUTO RACES ON AT STATE FAIR

COLUMBUS, Aug. 30.—A dozen of the world's fastest dirt track auto race drivers were at the state fair today for the auto races which will replace the horse races in track.

The fair management has offered $1,000 to any driver who will break the world dirt track record; $500 for a new state record and $300 for a new track record.

Total attendance this year will be much larger than in 1923, it was pointed out, as the daily attendance record has already outstripped corresponding records of last year's fairs.

Today the final competition in the horse shoe pitching tournament was run off. A horse show tonight was to mark the closing of the fair.

HERRIN MAN ASKS POLICE PROTECTION

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 30.—After making a brief and mysterious appearance last night just long enough to ask police protection from a "gang of Herrin gunmen who are enroute here to kill me," S. Glenn Young, for months storm center of the notorious southern Illinois riots, today again had dropped into seclusion.

Young, one of his legs in a plaster of Paris cast, conferred with police as he lay in bed at an Atlanta Hotel. Shortly after the conference he again disappeared, declaring it would be impossible to find him until he showed up of his own will.

BOY UNCONSCIOUS SINCE ACCIDENT

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 30—Josiah Updegraff, 8, sole survivor of eight passengers in a Ford touring car struck by a B. & O. passenger train at the south boundary crossing in Perrysburg, Thursday night, was still unconscious at a Toledo hospital today.

The boy, who is suffering from a fractured skull has only momentarily recovered consciousness since the accident, and early hopes that he might recover have been practically abandoned

The bodies of the seven victims were taken to Six Points, their home, where funeral services will be held.

New York Man Has New Post

PARIS, Aug. 30.—Owen Young, New York lawyer and financier, was today named reparations agent-general in Germany by the interallied reparations commission. Young was one of the drafters of the Dawes plan under which he will serve in his new post. His tenure of office is expected to be brief, as he did not want to accept and did so under protest.

M. Delacroix, Belgian delegate on the reparations commission, has been named trustee of railway applications. He has been requested to retain his position on the commission.

BUSINESS MAN MEETS BANDIT AND IS SHOT

IRONTON, O., Aug. 30.—Lorenzo Morrison, well known business man of Ironton, was shot in the hip at midnight last night by two highwaymen while he was en route to his home. He was walking along the street with his hands in his pockets when two masked men stepped from an alley. He complied with an order to throw up his hands, carrying $800 in one hand above his head which he took from his pocket.

The bandits began shooting without notice and Morrison ran dropping the money to the sidewalk. He was felled by a bullet lodging in his hip. The bandits fled leaving their victim in a gutter and his $800 on the sidewalk The injured man was rushed to a hospital and neighbors found the $800 intact.

PLAN NEW TEAM FOR FOOT BALL

The outfit that represented the Eagles on the gridiron last season will hold their first daylight practice at Riverview park, Sunday morning at 10 sharp.

It has not been definitely decided as yet, as to what name the gang will play under the coming season but its a safe bet they are going to have a hard team to beat when the bell rings. The team will have a new manager and captain as well as a new name and from all the advance dope will have three ex-college stars with them, two of these are well known to fans in this neck of the woods who will also act as coaches. The other bird a former Syracuse man and a flash at quarterback will help to show local followers the real thing in pigskin chasing the coming season.

All members are requested to report at this practice, anyone else wishing a fair tryout report at the park Sunday morning at 10:00 o'clock sharp.

LIFT EMBARGO ARMS SHIPMENT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30—President Coolidge today issued a proclamation lifting the embargo on the shipment of arms and ammunition from the United States to Cuba.

BULLETIN URGES CAREFUL DRIVING AT THIS SEASON

Anticipating a record-breaking amount of traffic and travel during the next 60 days which constitutes the heavy touring season, the automobile clubs of the Ohio State Automobile Association have issued a special bulletin urging all motorists to keep in mind the need for special precaution at this time.

This season, usually marked by a number of casualties, will offer many motorists an opportunity for their first long trip of the season, it is pointed out by Automobile Club officials.

Charles C. Janes, O. S. A. A. secretary, stated that motorists should be encouraged to put the motor car to its greatest use as a means of recreation, but the advantages should not be marred by needless mishaps. He urged that all motorists observe the following rules and courtesies of the road:

"Remember that thousands of new car owners are on their first tour and accordingly make allowances for their shortcomings.

"If you must arrive at your destination at a certain hour, don't start late and drive fast, but start early.

"Blow your horn at the top of all hills and at all turns in the road even if you seldom meet cars at these points in ordinary driving.

"Turn into a side road when changing tires or making roadside repairs, and do not stop on the main highway for picnic lunches.

"Familiarize yourself with the traffic regulations in the cities and towns you plan to pass through. The automobile club can supply you with the necessary information.

"There will be more children at this time than usual playing in the streets of cities and towns, because schools are not in session. Drive slowly and see that your brakes are in order.

"Know your way so that you do not make abrupt stops enroute, endangering those who fail to anticipate your sudden changes in speed and direction.

"It's always train time at any grade crossing, but remember that in the summer season many roads are on an increased schedule with trains running more frequently than usual.

"Be accurate with your hand signaling. You may be a clever driver but your safety depends on helping to compensate for the shortcomings of many inexperienced drivers who find summer outings their one opportunity for trip taking."

STEAMER DISABLED

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 30.—Reports to the effect that the steamer Greater Detroit had gone aground last night in the North Channel, when investigated showed that the big passenger liner's rudder had temporarily jammed. A tugboat towed the boat into deep water. The trouble was quickly righted. Few of the passengers knew that anything had gone wrong.

NUMBER TWO

House, with the President and Mrs. Coolidge.

No efforts will be made by the police who will guard the Prince's route from the Union Station to the executive mansion to keep the crowds away from the automobile carrying the heir to the British throne, it being the purpose of the federal and municipal authorities to keep the visit of the Prince as free as possible from all indications of pomp or ceremony.

Secretary of State Hughes will be at the Union Station to meet the prince when he steps from the train here. He will welcome him to the capital and will then accompany him to the White House to formally introduce him to the President and Mrs. Coolidge.

After a short rest for the prince after his train ride from New York, an informal luncheon will be served, there will only be four at the table—the prince, the president and Mrs. Coolidge and their son, John.

After luncheon, members of the cabinet, accompanied by their wives but no other members of their families, will call at the White House to meet the prince. According to plans this morning, the prince will remain at the executive mansion during his entire stay in Washington, not making extended tour of the capital that marked his official visit here in November, 1919.

The usual squadron of cavalry which escorts distinguished foreign visitors about Washington will be lacking during the prince's visit today, although a detachment of mounted police will be held in readiness to accompany the prince if he has no objections to the display.

Bluecoats on Guard

The state department shortly before noon requested the Metropolitan Police Department today to take special precaustions for safeguarding the prince during the time he is in Washington.

As the result of this request, additional bluecoats were called on duty and stationed around the union station, the White House and along Pennsylvania avenue.

Four policemen, on motorcycles, will ride beside the prince's automobile.

Masked Bandits Steal Payroll

DES MOINES, IOWA, Aug. 30—Five masked bandits today held up messengers of the Sherman Woolen Mills, returning from the bank with the week's payroll and escaped with $6,000.

STOCKS

NOON STOCKS

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Stock prices were uniformly higher in the short session of the Stock Market today, and trading in the first hour was more agressive than in either of the two preceding days Stocks that were pressed for sale on Thursday and Friday were in demand today, partly by the overcrowded short interest and partly by long traders. Attendance in Wall Street was somewhat restricted, but buying orders flowed into the street from important outside speculative centers.

Steel, copper and motor shares were the most prominent leaders in the upward movement, but a number of railroad and specialty stocks participated actively. Cast iron pipe was foremost in the latter group, with an advance to a new high for the year at 109 1-2. Railroad stocks led by Chesapeake and Ohio, New York Central, the St. Paul's, Pere Marquette, Frisco and Southern Railway, all of which were again near the high point for the week.

Maxwell, Pierce-Arrow, White, Willys-Overland and Mack Truck in the motor group, U. S. Steel, Crucible, Vanadium, Gulf States and Republic in the steel stocks; United States Smelting, Cerro De Pasco, Chile, Andutah in the coppers were conspicuously active and strong, gradually mounting to higher price levels, with today's prices from 2 to 6 points above the low of the week, recorded on Thursday and Friday. It was a complete reversal of form as far as general trading was concerned with bearish pressure almost entirely lifted and aggressive buying going in.

Reports that some of the big oil companies are offering premiums above market prices for long term contracts for delivery of crude oil: and that the gasoline market had shown considerable improvement in the last few days, helped to strengthen the position of oil stocks today and while trading was not active, higher prices were generally in order. Pan American B for example, which sold as low as 50 1-4 yesterday, was above 53 today on heavy trading. Cosden Oil rallied from 25 to 26 1-2 and Producers-Refiners from 27 1-2 to 29 1-4. The Standard Oil stocks were also higher; New Jersey selling around 35.

The better outlook for Wilson and Co. was reflected in the moderate market Wilson stocks today. Mercantile stocks were strong, with Associated Dry Goods advancing to a new high; shipping stocks also staged a moderate rally with mercantile preferred at 42 and American International around 29.

cupied accounts largely for this condition.

The fair this year will be a hummer, however. The entry lists have been filling up fast. It has not been the best kind of a year for the farmer, but there will be creditable exhibits in all departments. The school will be there with displays of their handiwork, and the Granges as usual will compete with a varied line of exhibits made by their members.

There will be horse races that will be as exciting as in former years. Many entries are coming in, to compete for the liberal purses offered. Automobile races, with some of the fastest drivers in the country at the wheel will feature the last day.

Watch for Pageant.

The pageant that will be produced by 500 children, assisted by their elders, will be the attraction on the two last night of the fair. It went over big last year and is expected to repeat this year.

Farmers will have an opportunity to see an endless display of farm implements. As usual the merchants will make this the big display of the fair. Of late years there has been a noticeable increase in the displays made in ladies' hall. In place of the old-fashioned bedquilts, crazy patch work, knitting, and tatting, beautiful embroidery, work on doilies, table linen, with classy embellishing of articles that bring joy to the woman's heart are found, along with hand painted china and paintings in oil and water colors.

The automobile section will be the center attraction, and every car on the market in this vicinity will be represented, with the latest models.

And don't forget the free attractions and the midway. The management has arranged for a number of daily free attractions that are bound to please the public.

In fact, you will just have to close up shop, or leave the farm and see this year's county fair.

DAYTON, Aug. 30.—Today is wind up day at the shoot of the Grand American Trapshooting Association.

Following the final shoot, awards will be made.

Harry C. Deck, Plymouth, O., yesterday annexed the Grand American handicap title and a diamond trophy with 97 out of 100.

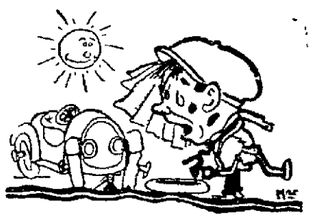

With a cheap gun Deck shot his way through to the main handicap match. He encountered severe competition, going against W. E. Beers of New Britain, Conn., Dr. C. C. Hickman of Logansport, and J. M. Green, of Jersey Shore, Pa., all tied with 97. Deck was returned winner in the shoot off with one bird missed.

RIALTO OPENS WITH MINSTREL SHOW MONDAY

Honey Boy, one of the highest salaried and most popular single male quartets in America are one of the many features of the Gus Hill and George Evans Honey Boy Minstrels. This organization has met with the most flattering success wherever they have appeared and the leading newspapers of the country have been unanimous in their praise as have been the large audiences. Each member of the quartet is a soloist of exceptional merit: Pat Rogers, baritone of the quartet, is one of the very few baritones possessing a voice of wide range, clear and powerful; Fred McGee, first tenor, is one of the leading lyric tenors in the country today, and his beautiful Alpine Yodel is one of the big hits of the performance; Richard Redwing, basso, is without a doubt the best basso connected with any quartet now before the public, being gifted with a beautiful bass voice as well as his wonderful ability in harmony singing; Ralph Grenado, second tenor, has a beautiful dramatic voice with a wide range. This famous quartet of singers have a repertoire of up-to-date numbers that will more than please the most fastidious. To hear this famous quartet of singing features than those exquisite singers. The big time fun makers headed by the famous Hi Miller, Fred McGee and many others keep the house in a continual uproar from the rise to the fall of the curtain, singers, comedians, eccentric dancers, McGinnis & King, and many of the very best novelty acts obtainable, including the Empire Eight, musical act make this organization worth going mile to see. This mammoth consolidation of minstrel stars will be at the Rialto on Monday, Sept. 1, Labor Day. A grand free spectacular street parade will be given at noon and a free band concert at 7:30 p. m. in front of the theatre. Reserved seats now on sale at the theatre box office.

BILLY WHISKERS

BY FRANCES TREGO MONTGOMERY

The crow flew up to Nannie who was sleeping on the top of a straw stack. It was her usual resting place, for from this vantage point she could get a view of all the country round-about as the stack stood on the top of a high hill. Here she spent most of her time night and day when Billy was away, looking for him to return. From here she could see not only the country roads, but also the railroad as well as the meadows and woodland. Consequently from whichever direction Billy might come she would be the first to see him. It was from this very lookout she had seen him when he returned from his western trip, from his Panama expedition and from across the ocean and far-away Constantinople. You must not forget that Billy was a traveled goat.

This particular morning she awoke at sunrise, but seeing a heavy mist hid the sun, she tried to go to sleep again as it foretold a hot day. But just as she was dropping off to sleep, she heard a crow caw directly over her head, and she thought it queer that the crows would be stirring so early. Again she closed her eyes, but the call was repeated and it sounded so much nearer than at first that she opened her eyes once more. Lo and behold! directly in front of her on a dead limb of a tree sat a big, black crow.

"Don't you know me, Mrs. Billy Whiskers?" cawed he.

"It isn't—it can't be our old friend and messenger Black Wings!"

"That is just who it is! You have good eyes, Mrs. Whiskers, to recognize me after all these years, especially as they say I have grown stouter."

"That you surely have, but any one having once seen your sharp, shrewd eyes would never forget them or the saucy turn of your head. You can't be here to give me another message from my beloved husband, can you?"

"That is just my business—to deliver a message from him, to tell you that he, Stubby and Button are all well and happy and, best of all, that none of them lost so much as an eye or a leg in the war. Which is quite remarkable, I think, as they were in the thick of the fight more than once, and were also torpedoed by a submarine. But just wait until you see them! They themselves will tell you about their war experiences."

"Oh, how happy you have made me, Mr. Black Wings, by bringing me the message that the husband I adore is safe and sound and in this country once again! I don't believe I can ever stand it to have him go away from me again. I have died a thousand deaths in imagining him wounded and left to die on the battlefield, or, worse yet, blown to atoms by a shell. Come with me while I tell Billy Junior and Daisy the good news."

(And tomorrow we shall hear how happy the good news makes them.)

THEATRES

GRAND—"Those Who Dance," directed by Thos. H. Ince is a tense, strong drama dealing with the greatest problem the nation faces today, the liquor enforcement question, presented fearlessly, fascinatingly as Ince always can do it. Also good comedy and news. Beginning Sunday, "The Arab" with Ramon Navarro.

RIVOLI—Last time today "Virtuous Liars." Beginning tomorrow, Betty Compson in the latest Selznick production. "White Shadows." In this story Miss Compson plays a dual role. She takes the parts of twin sisters. Also comedy and news weekly.

DREAMLAND — "Behind the Curtain," a thrilling mystery story which keeps you in the dark until the final fadeout. Quick action and thrills all the way. A good comedy completes the bill.

RIALTO—Gus Hill's Minstrels, Monday night only. Fifty comedians, dancers, singers and entertainers all on the same stage will provide an evening of entertainment for Elyria theater-goers which is not often surpassed.

Sunday Concerts Rialto Sept. 7

"The popular "Sunday concerts" that have been a feature at the Rialto theatre each season, will start Sunday, Sept. 7. As in the past three performances will be given each Sunday: a matinee at 2:30 p. m., evenings at 7:00 and 8:30 p. m. Five first class vaudeville acts, a one-reel News Weekly and a two-reel comedy will make up the program, and some of the best known performers on the American stage, are underlined for an early appearance. A new scale of prices will prevail this season. This year at matinee all seats will be 40c instead of 50c, as they were last season. At night all seats will be 50c instead of 75c. At the matinee children will be 15c, and in the evening the gallery will be 25c.

Two dollars and twenty-five cents will be charged for single tickets at the finals and semi-finals in the coming tournament at Forest Hills for the women's national tennis championships.

The Buenos Aires Lawn Tennis Club, the oldest and best-known organization of its kind on the southern continent, has a membership of more than 60. Its clubhouse is said to be one of the finest in the world.

The junior championship tournament of the Western Golf Association will be staged at the Briergato Golf Club, Chicago, August 12-15.

"Jinx" Harris, the right hand pitcher purchased by the Detroit Tigers from the Greensboro Piedmont league club, has had a rapid rise to the top, this being his first full season in professional baseball.

Louisville's recent victory over St. Paul by a score of 25 to 0 was some feat on the part of the Colonels, but it was not a world's record for shutout games as has been claimed by some. On August 21, 1883, the Providence team of the National league set up a record in this respect by shutting out Philadelphia to the tune of 28 to 0.

Curly Wilshur, the Canadian featherweight champion, is receiving good notices from the fight critics in Australia, where he is now trying his hand at the game.

SOCIETY

R. C. MASTON NEW HEAD OF COUNTY INSTITUTE

The final session of the Lorain County Teacher's Institute opened yesterday afternoon at 1:30 with Miss Mabel Askew of Oberlin in charge of the meeting. It was announced that the total enrollment for the Institute was 285.

After the splendid addresses by Miss Florence Hale, of the Maine Department of Education and Joy Morgan, editor of the N. E. A. Journal, the officers for 1924-1925 were elected.

The result of the balloting was as follows: president, R. C. Maston, superintendent of the schools of Elyria; vice president, Miss Agnes Carr of LaGrange and secretary-treasurer, J. J. Vaughn of Elyria High school.

The Schoolmasters' Club announced the dates of their meetings for the year which are as follows: December 12, February 13 and April 17. The place of meeting will be announced later.

A committee which included H. M. Ebert, Marian Steele, Ida B. Bradly, Sarah E. Whitehouse and R. W. Jeffrey presented the following resolutions which were unanimously adopted:

Whereas: The school officials of the city of Elyria have generously given us the freedom of their High school building, and

Whereas: The officials of the County Institute secured instructors whose able lectures have been an inspiration to us. Therefore,

Be it Resolved: That we extend to each and all of these officials our sincere thanks, and that we prove ourselves worthy of these favors by using due diligence in the improvement of our schools along all lines suggested.

Whereas: The teachers realize and appreciate the cultural value of good music to both pupils and teachers, we wish to express our thanks to the "Anvil Chorus" and our present music leader and to resolve that careful provision be made for special music for the 1925 institute.

Knowing that the National, State and Local associations have done much for the advancement of education and the promotion of the interests of teachers, we therefore believe it the duty of every teacher to assist in the support of these institutions by membership in them.

Whereas: There has been much propaganda disseminated regarding the complete failure of the 18th amendment to the Federal Constitution, and that this propaganda is erroneous as is demonstrated by the absence of the open saloon, by increased savings deposits in our banks, by greater safety on our crowded thoroughfares because of the almost complete absence of drunkenness, and because of happy and prosperous homes where formerly there were drunkenness, feat and poverty,

Be it Resolved: That we as teachers do all in our power to combat this erroneous propaganda and to inspire in our pupils an optimistic view of the ultimate and complete success of this amendment, and that we renew with increased zeal our efforts to teach obedience to constituted authority everywhere and especially to the fundamental law of the land.

Whereas: Our neighboring city, Lorain, has so recently suffered such great disaster,

Be it Resolved: That we the teachers of Lorain county extend to the administrators, teachers and citizens generally our sincere sympathy and our appreciation of their splendid spirit as they begin another year's work.

DOROTHY DALRYMPLE WEDS GLEN R. HULL

A wedding of interest took place in Cleveland this afternoon at 4:30, when Miss Dorothy Dalrymple, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen T. Dalrymple of this city and Glen R. Hull, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Hull, also of this city, were united in marriage. The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. William F. Dalrymple of Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. Hull are both graduates of the Elyria High School in the class of 1920. Mrs. Hull is a graduate of Elyria Business College and for the last three years has been associated with the International Society for Crippled Children.

Mr. Hull is a graduate of Ohio State University and as a chemical engineer is now on the chemical staff of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

ELYRIA COUPLE QUIETLY MARRIED AT AMHERST

Mrs. Mary Leedale and Earl Rice of this city were quietly married at the home of Rev. F. E. Eastman, pastor of the United Church of Amherst, Friday afternoon at four o'clock, after which they left for an extended motor trip through the East and will be at home to their many friends after October first at 129 Eastern Heights Boulevard.

Mrs. Rice has been in the employ of The C. H. Merthe Company for the past five years and has a large circle of friends who extend their congratulations and best wishes.

Mr. Rice, who is connected with the I. T. S. Rubber Heel Company is well and favorably known and the same good wishes have been extended to him.

WHITE-GAY NUPTIALS SOLEMNIZED AT WATERVLIET, ILL.

The marriage of Miss Vivian White, daughter of Mrs. A. F. Beebe, of Chicago, to Elwood A. Gay, of Ann Arbor, Michigan, was solemnized this past week at the Congregational church in Watervliet. Miss White is well known in Elyria having visited frequently at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Alex Parsch, of Harvard avenue, and has a host of local friends who are interested to learn of her marriage.

At the White-Gay wedding, the bride was attended by Miss Helen Messenger and the groom by Raymond Evans. The simple little gown of white georgette trimmed in old lace was set off by the beauty of the young bride.

The young couple will make their home in Chicago after Sept. 15th, 1924.

Mr. Gay is a member of the Lawyers University now so popular at the Woodward pavilion and the bride is unusually popular in the Paw Paw Lake vicinity, having resided there during the past four summers.

LAPORTE M. E. CHURCH ITEMS

Rev. J. C. Smight, the district superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal church, will make his final visit to the LaPorte M. E. church tomorrow morning. He will preach and hold the communion service at 11 o'clock and then conduct the church conference. This will be the last business meeting of the year and all reports wil be completed. The committee on church repairs will make their final report in the improvements made on the church property.

The Sunday school under the superintendence of W. B. Hamlin is continuing to make substantial gains in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Hewitt and family, 315 Park avenue, left today for Grimsby, Ontario, where they will visit Mr. Hewitt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Hewitt, Sr. Later they will go to Toronto where they will be the guests of Mr. Hewitt's sister.

GREGG SHORTHAND
The quickest, easiest and most certain way for girls to secure profitable and pleasant employment is to become a good shorthand writer, learn typewriting, business English, and spelling. These with a good working knowledge of bookkeeping and business forms are the essentials for stenigraphic, secretarial and civil service positions.
These fields of opportunity are large and the calls for trained help are many.
WORK—WORK—WORK
Young man, young woman are you a drone—a drowsy minded person—a sleepy-eyed—don't care sort of person? Neither business office nor the business world will have little use for you until you wake up. It is the alert, wide-a-wake, get-there sort of young people that are registering for courses at The Elyria Business College. Eighty-five are now registered for the fall term. Don't attend this school if you don't expect to work and WIN SUCCESS.

BOOKKEEPING COURSE
The Bookkeeping couse at The E. B. C. is endorsed by Certified Public Accountants and Auditors. It is the course that is taught in the best business colleges throughout the country.
Not only is it a modern approved course but this course includes Business Arithmetic, Business English and Correspondence, Spelling, Commercial Law, Penmanship, Business Forms, Rapid Calculation and calculating machine. Throughout the E. B. C. courses, the word WORK is an important one. Here is where every student LEARNS TO DO BY DOING.
PARENTS, we invite you to bring that industrious boy or girl to the E. B. C. for a thoroughly dependable course in business training.
Young people out of school for the past ten years or more are leaving their "jobs" to train at the E. B. C. for "positions."
WHO ATTEND BUSINESS COLLEGE
This institution enrolls and trains a large number of High School graduates. It also receives students of one, two or three years of high school education who wish to find a shorter and more certain road to office employment.
A complete business course added to a grammar grade education has in many cases resulted in brilliant successes. Students range in age from 16 years to more than twice that age. If one has been out of school for 10 years or more, there is an ever-present opportunity for them to educate for business.

AMERICANIZING THE GARDEN OF EDEN

Modern Methods Introduced by Americans Replace Centuries-Old Practice in the Growing of Dates in the Home of Adam and Eve.

FROM the Garden of Eden, where Adam and Eve walked hand in hand, comes the roar of power machinery and soon the air will be filled with the explosions of a gasoline pumping engine. These uncanny noises simply mean that the descendants of Adam are getting ready to introduce modern American methods into the growing of dates, for which the Garden of Eden is famous the world over.

Old methods have got to go. Two dates must grow where one grew before, and the fertile valleys at the junction of the Tigris and Euphrates rivers where the Shat-el-Arab ("River of the Arab") is formed is the logical place to introduce new methods, for it is here that the date gardens grow which have given Mesopotamia the name "Land of the Date."

Travelers frequently remark that the Garden of Eden, which gives the appearance of a desert, only needs water to make it burst into blossom. This is true, for the land is fertile. The difficulty lies in applying water to the soil in sufficient volume, for the date palm must have water as well as intense heat. An Arabian proverb has it that the date palm must have "its feet in water and its head in fire."

For thousands of years the Arabs have used the waters of the Shat-el-Arab to irrigate their date gardens. Their method is to use the action of the tide of the Persian Gulf, which backs up the water in the river. Channels are dug leading away from the river, and the water rising twice a day flows into these channels and so reaches the roots of the palms. Water rights are carefully controlled, each date grower being allowed a certain volume of water for his garden. This simple system of irrigation is probably the oldest one devised by man and, strange to say, has remained unchanged to this day.

If the land stretching back from the river bank were level throughout the gardens the simple tide system of irrigation would suffice, but the land rises, and this causes the land nearest the river bank to be flooded while the high lands do not get enough water. The Arab's way of overcoming this difficulty is to use donkey or camel power to raise the water to the high levels. Sometimes the water is raised by hand.

For many centuries the crudest device has been used to regulate the flow of water from the river into the main channels. A dam is built at the river bank and when the tide has risen the dam is cut to allow the channel to fill. This requires cutting and patching the dam twice a day. Other growers pierce the dam with palm log pipes, which they plug with mud and palm fiber when they wish to shut out the water. Both methods are laborious and time-consuming, but they have persisted through the centuries.

The grower who has a garden extending some distance back from the river bank fears the flooding of the lower levels of his garden and so shuts off the flow of water before it has a chance to reach the end of the channel in the higher levels. He is then forced to water the date offshoots, fruit trees and surface crops by hand while using crude lifting devices to water the high regions of his garden.

They've done it for centuries. A one man-power device for lifting water from the river into the irrigation canals.

The date gardens are so cut up with intersecting channels as to make the cultivation of the intervening land with machinery impossible. All the work is done with a long-handled, small-bladed Arabian spade by three men working in unison. It requires from one to three months to spade over an acre to the required depth, for the diggers can only work between dawn and 10:00 a. m. because of the terrific heat of the day. A temperature of 130 degrees in the shade is not unusual.

Now comes an American concern to introduce methods which will make the Garden of Eden, the same Garden of Eden from which the ancestors of ancient man were expelled, an even more important date center. And the Arabs of Mesopotamia who wish to increase their date crops will have an example to follow in this modern American date garden.

The date has always been the principal food of the Arabs and they are able to live for months with nothing else but milk, because the date contains a form of sugar which is easily assimilated by the human body and also protein, fat, lime, iron and roughage. No wonder that this sturdy race holds the date in high esteem and that an Arabian proverb tells that when God made Adam some of the soil clung to his hands and this He molded into a date palm.

Date gardens represented tangible wealth centuries ago and were used as security for the borrowing of money, as recorded by clay tablets and other relics of antiquity. The first mortgage of which there is any record was on a date garden in Mesopotamia.

Now after countless centuries the new returns to teach the old, and a tract of land in the Garden of Eden, whose area obviously was cultivated in ancient times, will be restored to prosperity by an American firm, the Hills Brothers Company, long an importer of dates and now about to become a grower. Dates have grown so in popularity in this country that now we consume almost half the entire crop of Mesopotamia, whereas a few years ago we imported only a third.

When improvements are completed this tract of land will present a beautiful picture, for the palms are tall, clean cut and straight, with a crown of leaves at the top which lends dignity. The fruit hangs in large clusters from the top of the trees, and as much as 200 pounds can be gathered from a tree in its twentieth year. The volume of fruit is expected to be even greater when modern methods of cultivation are used. The palms live to a great age and have been known to bear fruit when seventy years old. Doubtless this gave rise to the Arabian tradition that the date palm was the Tree of Life.

Under the new system of irrigation water will still be taken from the Shat-el-Arab at high tide, but a big sluice will allow the water to flow quickly to the end of the main channel before the gate has to be closed to keep out the crest of the tide. Another advantage of this sluice is that it allows the hot, salty water to flow back to the river at low tide before the onrushing water of the new tide blocks its course.

From the main channel, secondary channels are dug at right angles, and from these radiate surface channels so that the whole garden area is covered with a network of channels. The surface channels are never in direct contact with the main channel, but some water percolates through from the latter and that sweetens the water. At the highest point in the tract of land a gas engine pumps water from the lower level and sends it through the radiating channels. Donkey or mule power is now a thing of the past.

A certain amount of labor is necessary to cultivate the gardens, and native labor, while strong, is notoriously inefficient. It is a local custom to pay a man a wage of three rupees for working six days a week between dawn and 10.00 a. m. This may seem like a small wage, but the laziness of the workers makes the digging over of an acre cost about 300 rupees. Under American management this has all been changed; day labor has been abolished and digging is now put out at contract.

To change the system of hiring labor in a land where tradition has a strangle hold on the people is no small matter. Improvements and innovations are looked upon with suspicion and haste in concluding any business puts up the price. Local ways of doing business are well illustrated by the following statement of an American date garden manager. He says: "The amount of time, tea, coffee and cigarettes consumed before a ten foot hole can be dug would about fill it."

Channels are now laid out to permit plowing the land in between. In the future an acre of land can be plowed thirty times for the cost of one hand spading, and the size of the date crop will be increased manifold by the combination of steady water supply, surface cultivation and spacing of the palms. The water supply will be assured and losses from drought or flood will be eliminated.

Western ideas and methods penetrate slowly in the land of Mahomet, for strong prejudices have to be overcome. Only recently the first windmill made its appearance and now the modern gas engine has arrived on the scene. Little did Adam and Eve dream, when they had their first date in the Garden of Eden, that posterity would return to transform the Garden thousands of years later.

HELPED HER IN EVERY WAY

So Writes Mrs. Trombley of Sharon Vt., Concerning Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sharon, Vermont.—"I was weak and run-down, had a tired feeling and bearing-down pains. I saw an advertisement in the newspaper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and began taking it. It has stopped these bearing-down pains and other bad feelings, and has helped me in every way. I have so much faith in the Vegetable Compound that I keep it on hand all of the time and recommend it whenever I have the opportunity."—Mrs. LEWIS TROMBLEY, Sharon, Vermont.

Glad to Help Others

"I had pains in my back and sides for many months, and my work would have to be left undone at those times. My sister told me what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing her, so I tried it, and from the third bottle I was well and every one thought I looked better. I am glad to help others regain their health, and you may use my testimonial."—MABEL HARTMANN, 1824 Greene Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y. You must believe that a medicine that has helped other women will help you.

DAY'S MUSIC STORE

This is the last day of our Trade In Sale and some very "worth while bargains" still remain. Come in tonight and take advantage of the unusual opportunity to buy a real Victrola or Sonora at from 1-3 to 1-2 off.

Meet us at the Fair—Monday afternoon a special attraction is offered in the saxophone solos at our booth by Mr. Milton H. Klein who appears all week at the Grand Theatre.

One of the famous Gulbransen Registering Pianos will be on hand to demonstate to you the wonderful difference between this and the ordinary player piano.

The Fine Art of Making Musical Instruments showing the complete history and story of the Saxophone is a most interesting and educational film to be shown all of next week at the Grand Theatre. This is an extra attraction put on in addition to the regular bill at no increase in price.

In order to give people an opportunity to see the real instruments after seeing how they are made, we will keep our store open each evening until 10 o'clock.

The famous six Brown brothers who have helped make the saxophone popular are playing in Cleveland this week. It is interesting to note that they all play Buescher true tone instruments, the kind we sell.

A brief mention of the week's new Victor records out Friday. Little Orphan Annie as given by Louise Homer bears out the delightful spookiness of the original.

The Barnyard song is on the reverse. Fritz Kreisler plays "A Kiss in the Dark" to honor his friend Victor Herbert, also "The Waltzing Doll."

Two old negro Spirituals "Go Down Like Moses" and "Heav'n-Heav'n" are both amusing and touching. Lou Holtz has a second edition of his farcical "Oh Sole, Oh Me" and "I can't get the one I Want." Two Strauss marches are played by Goldman's Band.

Paul Whiteman runs true to form in his new "The Song of Songs" and "My Dream Girl." Jan Garber plays "I Want to be happy" and "I never care About Tomorrow. "Hinkey Dinkey Parly Voo" and "You'll Never Get to Heaven with Those Eyes."

DAY'S HARDWARE

Visit Day's Hardware booth at the Fair in New Merchants Hall.

An expert demonstrator will be there to show you the Easy Electric Washer, the fastest selling washer on the market today. He will explain why so many people are choosing the EASY.

A very handsome all white gas range, such as all women want, will also be on display, the new model Sweeper-Vac the "two-in-one" electric cleaner belt driven brush and vac-mop.

That big B. P. S. paint sample rack shows just how the paint really looks on wood and gives you a chance to select the colors you want for auto, house, floor or walls.

The new hunting cards are ready and will be distributed at the fair.

A hunting permit is attached to get the permission of the Farmer, as well as the 1924 and 1925 game laws. They're Free.

If you are planning a fishing trip for Labor Day, come in and take advantage of the sale prices on rods, baits, tackle boxes and other sporting goods.

No: we didn't buy two new flivvers, one of our men and a couple of quarts of good B. P. S. quick drying auto enamel made the old cars look 100% better. You can do the same with yours. Ask for color cards.

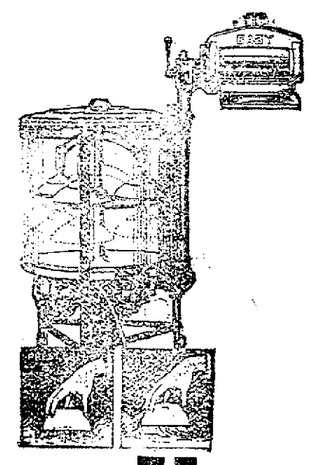

The arrangement of our second floor housefurnishing room has been changed, new things added, and you are invited to take the elevator and look over the most complete line of house furnishings and laundry things we have ever shown.

Every student needs a sharp pocket knife for school. Robeson Shur-Edge knives have unusually fine steel blades, and we have a great variety of sizes, patterns, style of handles and number of blades. Every one is warranted.

Winchester Shot guns were much in evidence at the National Trap shooting contest at Dayton this week, many high scores being made with the old reliable.
